

DIARY NOTESExecutive Director-Comptroller

12 July 1965

1. Jack Earman talked with me about several items.

a. He mentioned a replacement for Ed Applewhite. He has subsequently discussed this with Dick Helms and it has been agreed that Rodger <sup>O'Brien</sup> Gribby will fill this position provided, of course, that this is agreeable to Rodger.

b. I reviewed with Jack the current practice of sending audit reports to BPAM. I asked him to continue this and, in addition, to bring to my personal attention any significant reports of which he thinks I should be promptly aware.

c. Jack and I had agreed some time ago that he would have a team look into our procurement and contracting procedures. He wanted to assign Scott Breckinridge and Frank Chapin to this survey, but they will not be available until a little later. I agreed that this was okay but that we should do it as soon as possible.

2. I read the Inspector General's report on the National Photographic Interpretation Center over the weekend. It appears to be an excellent report and I have had informal conversations with Hank Knoche as to the action which DDCI ought to take. I anticipate that this will be forthcoming from DDCI in a memorandum.

3. [ ] was in to brief me on the status of the long-range plan. They are currently trying to do the first five years with dollar figures attached. However, the second and third five-year periods will be prepared without dollar estimates. I agreed that this seemed sensible at this point in time. [ ] reported that Mr. Kirkpatrick is driving hard to complete this report by 1 September and he feared there might be some irritation because of a 28 July deadline which has been set for submission of a great deal of the material. I told [ ] that I thought it important for this report to be completed prior to Kirk's full-time departure for Brown University and that we should realize that no report of this kind is worth very much unless it is reviewed periodically and kept up to date. Hence, I don't think we should shy away from short deadlines, nor should we strive for absolute perfection.

4. [redacted] were in to talk with me about certain renovations in the lobby and reception rooms which have recently been approved by Kirk. While I certainly would like to see this work done, I have some misgivings about spending money for lowering ceilings, etc., in the face of the President's admonition not to spend money for up-grading decor, etc. I asked them to reconsider this proposition and to come back and see me in about two weeks with Bob Bannerman.

5. I reviewed with [redacted] the briefing sheets which have been prepared for the Director's consideration prior to his attendance at the President's meeting on 16 July. The more I see of this the stronger I feel that this is a wheel-spinning exercise not at all realistic for this Agency. We may have to go through it, but in the final analysis the Director should appeal to the President if necessary. (On 13 July John Clarke, [redacted] and I briefed the Director and Mr. Helms at which time Dick's reaction was exactly the same. He undertook to solicit McGeorge Bundy's assistance to convene the 303 Committee with Mr. Schultze present, at which time we would make a broad-brush budget presentation, emphasizing that cuts in CIA's budget in today's world are unrealistic and unwise, with the hope that we could persuade the Bureau of the Budget to treat us a little differently from the way they treat old-line agencies. In the meantime, however, we have received a letter from Mr. Schultze saying that indeed we are going to have to go through the exercise, identify lower priorities, etc., and that he would hope we would do this in our first task force report, which he would like to receive on 16 July, one week prior to the Director's scheduled Fiscal Year 1967 preview meeting with the Director of the Bureau. I have asked BPAM to prepare the report for the Director's consideration, but we will, of course, not submit it until we know the results of Dick's efforts and until we have heard what the President has to say on 16 July.)

6. I asked Bob Bannerman to look into the case of [redacted] who returned from Saigon recently and let me know sometime soon the facts of the situation.

7. I talked to Dick Helms and Des Fitzgerald about a cable from Honolulu indicating that an unconventional warfare planning agency was to be set up on Okinawa. Des felt that we could keep in close enough touch with this very small agency without integrating someone into it and that, except for getting [redacted] to find out what is going on, he thought no action appropriate at this moment. I left it in his good hands.

8. Dean Acheson telephoned Dick Helms about [redacted]
[redacted] age 55, who is retiring from the Foreign Service.

Apparently he stubbed his toe with Soapy Williams and is retiring on request. Dean Acheson said, however, that he is a good fellow. Dick has requested that I interview [redacted] and explore possibilities in CA Staff and DO Division for him. He will also be glad to see [redacted] as a matter of courtesy if I think it is necessary.

9. I talked with Bill Tidwell about his request that the Agency intercede with the Army to obtain his promotion to Brigadier General. I told Bill that I had talked with Dick Helms about this and that, since this was being handled at the "Dear Johnny" and "Dear Westy" level, we felt that we might do more harm than good if we injected ourselves into the situation. I did tell him, however, that General Johnson was a classmate of mine and if the opportunity afforded itself I would put in a good word. I emphasized, however, that General Johnson is one of the most straightforward, above-board people I know and that I doubted very seriously that he would bend the rules very much to accommodate either us or General Westmoreland. Bill was somewhat disappointed but said that he would appreciate anything we could do.

10. Jack Earman told me that he would like to recommend [redacted]
[redacted] for promotion to grade GS-18. I told Jack that I had a high regard for [redacted] and would have no reservation in promoting him provided that our slot and grade situation would permit. We will have to reserve judgment on the final action until we see how this all comes out.
